Duties Summary

Emergency communications are critical to Hawaii's response to natural disasters, terrorist threats, and other incidents and activities affecting our state. The ability of public safety responders to communicate with each other is essential to the health, safety, and welfare of the public. The Statewide Interoperability Coordinator (SWIC) is the only position in the state of Hawaii tasked with ensuring cooperation, collaboration, and integration among County, State, and Federal public safety agencies to ensure interoperability, accountability, inclusiveness, and adoption and integration of new technologies in public safety communications. The SWIC develops with stakeholders and oversees the implementation of the Statewide Communications Implementation Plan (SCIP), a strategic planning and interoperability document, which integrates all elements that go into enhancing the state and county efforts to attain public safety communications interoperability. The SWIC works with emergency response stakeholders across all levels of government to implement the state's strategic vision for achieving interoperability.
